

Building Effective Multi-Stakeholder Research Teams

Further Reading:

Creating a Shared Vision

► Vision

Authors: L. Michelle Bennett, Howard Gadlin, Christophe Marchand

Source: National Cancer Institute Collaboration and Team Science Field Guide (2nd Edition), Chapter 6, Updated May 2018

Length: 12 pages

This chapter of the comprehensive guidebook on establishing and preparing a research team offers suggestions on developing a shared vision. The guidebook also includes other helpful chapters covering topics such as fostering trust, handling conflict, and strengthening team dynamics.

Link

► Developing a Team Vision

Authors: Michael A. West, Kerrie L. Unsworth

Source: Parker, Glenn M. (Ed.) Handbook of Best Practices for Teams (Vol 2). HRD Press, New Jersey, 1998

Length: 18 pages

This article explains the relationship between team visions, mission statements, goals, objectives, and action plans, and presents eight key elements of a team vision.

Link

► The Importance of Inspiring a Shared Vision

Authors: Jacqueline Martin, Brendan McCormack, Donna Fitzsimons, Rebecca Spirig

Source: International Practice Development Journal, September 2014

Length: 15 pages

This study explores the benefits of developing a shared vision from the perspective of leaders and team members.

Link

